New Hanover County: Seagate- Wilmington FD, New station opened sometime this past fall. Drove past it, looked nice!

J.Boggs - 01/01/09 - 19:35

No Durham County?

Marc Bouchard - 01/02/09 - 11:20

The Durham County fire departments in 1982 have neither (a.) ceased operating or (b.) changed names, at least on first pass of the list.

Legeros - 01/02/09 - 11:24

Possible correction to Mecklenberg County: Providence VFD still exists. It's station is no longer in Meck. Co. but still has territory in Meck. Co. It's station is on Hemby Road in Union County.

In New Hanover County, the Seagate FD was dissolved in 2005. Wilmington FD recently opened Station 10, however, and it is named Seagate Station. It's located on the site of the old Seagate fire station. <http://www.ci.wilmington.nc.us/Home/Toda..>

In Durham County, one fire department service no longer exists. Durham FD had a county truck that served unincorporated areas around the 1960s (correct decade?). There was also a Durham rescue squad, county wide?, that may have been operated by DFD.

Legeros - 01/02/09 - 21:03

East Alamance FD became part of Pleasant Grove FD (Sta. 12) if not mistaken when I lived there. Also, 54 East(Sta.10) was really a substation for Swepsonville. They just recently opened a new station on property beside the old station to replace it. The older one was too small and they needed a new & more modern station.
