

The Well-Protected Lens

08/18/13 87 W, 1 I - + 6 - 1

Should you put a protective filter on that lens of yours? Depends who you ask. Some folks say don't put cheap glass over good glass, if you have a higher-end lens. Other just won't risk lens damage. Er, damage to the front element of a lens, which is what we're talking about. Here's a fun posting from the Lensrental blog, and a picture of theirs with fifty UV filters stacked and packed. Enjoy, then Google for discussions on the issue.
